SNOW TRIP

Well, The sierra snows are falling and what-do-you know, it's almost time once again for our "annual" village snow trip. The trip this year promises to be a great one for skiers and non-skiers alike.

This year the village snow excursion will be held at Scott Rows' sierra hideaway near the town of Murphy and just a short hop, skip and jump from the winter resort area of Bear Valley and the great skiing of nearby Mt. Reba.

Skiers can enjoy the numerous runs of Mt. Reba (8506) which recently had the addition of a triple chair lift installed as well as having the main lodge expanded. Non-skiers can build fantastic tobogan runs or just play around in that "white stuff". Who knows you may even be able to challenge our advisor- Adrian Stith to an all out snow fight. But be careful, Adrian has a tendency to loose new Seiko watches in the snow.

The date for the trip is (Quick go get your calendar) Febuary 3,4,5 and the cost is $16.00. That fee includes your transportation to and from, and all your meals for the week end. Note: this price does not include the price of lift tickets (obviously) for anyone wishing to Ski. Ski lift tickets were approx. $19.00.

For more information about times and other interesting facts be at the next two village meetings. Don't forget now!
